Aloha Pacific Federal Credit Union Opens Fort Street Branch

HONOLULU—Aloha Pacific Federal Credit Union (Aloha Pacific) will open its Fort Street branch in mid-December. This full service branch will showcase several unique features for a financial institution, including a WiFi internet café, remote teller technology and an interior design that creates a comfortable, welcoming setting for their members. CUSO of Hawaii will also be located in this branch, offering mortgage services, real estate services and financial products and services for commercial members and clients.

“We are extremely pleased with the location of our flagship branch in the heart of the financial district of downtown Honolulu,” said CEO Wallace Watanabe. “With extended business hours from 7:30 a.m. to 5 p.m., we will offer convenience for many of our members who work in the area. This branch will also be key to our overall growth strategy as we expand membership to other organizations in the surrounding community.”

The Fort Street location is Aloha Pacific FCU’s fourth branch. A grand opening ceremony for this branch is planned for early 2008. Other future branches include Hawaii Kai, Kaimuki, Kailua and Kapolei. Watanabe said, “Our branch expansion plans will benefit our members with the added convenience of multiple locations throughout Oahu. Moreover, these plans benefit the communities we serve with competitive products and the Hawaii economy with additional jobs.”
